St. Domingo

LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES ON ST. DOMINGO.

TRINITY PARISH, NEW YORK, CLERGY ROOMS TRINITY CHURCH, Feb 3, 71.

MR. DEAR GENERAL.—I have just returned from Nassau, N. P., where I escorted Mrs. Vinton for her health, leaving her there for the winter and spring months. The voyage has occasioned reflections and conversation on the question of acquiring St. Domingo as a sanitarium. The universal wish of the Americans at Nassau was for a resort on American soil in the West Indies for the benefit of invalids, expressed in a longing for the success of your efforts to secure the island of St. Domingo.

But this motive is secondary to the great political and commercial advantages. In conversation with her British Majesty's Governor (Walker) at Nassau he said to me that he earnestly hoped that the United States would secure the island of St. Domingo, for the two-fold reason—first, that our civilization and culture would redeem the society of the West Indies, and second, that the soil and productions of the island—surpassing those of any other, not excepting Cuba—would enrich our country beyond any cost that its acquisition would demand. Governor Walker has been forty one years in the West Indies and is about to return home to enjoy retirement on his pension. His eulogy of St. Domingo was unqualified. Another view of the importance of securing the island was suggested by talking with an intelligent sea captain with the chart before us with soundings &c. He pointed out that, supposing the ship canal to be made through the Isthmus of Panama, the direct route from Asia to Europe must be through the channels on either side of St. Domingo, which accordingly must become the great entrepot between these quarters of the world. I beg you to examine the chart with this view, and it will strike you forcibly that an island so rich, so fertile, so badly ruled and so carelessly cultivated will certainly fall into the hands of some of the Caucasian race—of some government wise enough to hold it. I wish my old friend and schoolmate at the Dane Law School, Cambridge, Mr. Sumner, would cease to oppose the measure set on foot by the President and Congress, and see the matter with the eyes which have revealed to me the immense importance of obtaining St. Domingo. And in this hope and opinion I feel assured the masses of our fellow citizens who are not blinded by party nor by ignorance coincide. I pray that God's blessing may prosper your plans in this regard, for the benefit of universal man the good of our dear country and the happiness of the inhabitants of the Island. I remain dear General, yours faithfully, FRANCIS VINTON.

To His Excellency President Grant.

REVENUE REFORM AT THE WEST.—It seems to be a question between the New York Tribune and the World whether or not the Revenue Reform flurry is dying away in the West—the former having declared that such is the case, which the latter disputed. As we are, providentially, placed at the Western center of the Revenue Reform contagion, our testimony may be of some effect in settling the point at issue which is why we remark.

Revenue Reform, as such, in this vicinity, died in coming into the world. Free trade ideas, throughout the West, are largely prevalent, but with that emasculate counterfeit of free trade which, under the title of Revenue Reform, is afraid to face the logical consequences of the principles it professes, and which was devised simply as a machine to elevate certain trimmers to office, there is no sympathy—not a particle.

The Revenue Reform flurry hereabouts did not create a ripple upon the political surface. The little clique of plotters who supposed that they had constructed a mine which was to blow the existing party system into indistinguishable fragments, found, after waiting in fidgety silence until they were tired for the sound of the explosion, that their magazine was charged with sand instead of nitro glycerine. Never were a party of ingenious gentlemen so completely taken in and done for by their own contrivance. There was not even a sprinkle where they had fully made up their minds to expect a deluge.

Our neighbor, The Tribune went out of the Republican party with a grand flourish and in a state of high moral tension, prepared, like a Titan or a seceding archangel, for a conflict by which both heaven and earth would be astonished. But that which he conceived to be mighty and sublime, every body else looked upon as petty and ridiculous. While he put on the airs, as he supposed, of a Hercules, everybody else saw took them for the antics of a Bombastes. And so, after a fortnight or three weeks of standing outside and rattling his accoutrements at which nobody was either amused or disturbed, he came back again, and the Revenue Reform flurry was no more.—Chicago Republican.

The Rothschild Family.

It is stated that the Baron Lionel de Rothschild of England, will soon be raised to the peerage. Of Jewish knights and baronets there have been many, but no coronet has ever been bestowed on any child of Israel till now. The New York Independent, in an article on this event, gives the following account of the origin of the great Rothschild family:

The real name of the Rothschild family is Meyer, and the founder of its greatness was Anselm Meyer, who dealt in money in Frankfort at the sign of the Red Shield—der Roths child. At the time of the invasion by Bonaparte, one of the petty princes of Germany—we believe the Elector of Hesse—confided his treasure in coined money and jewels to the care of Meyer, without having any legal security whatever, which perhaps could not be given with safety at that time, relying entirely on his honor and honesty. This money Meyer used in his business for some eight or ten years making enormous profits. On the fall of Bonaparte, and the inhabilitation of his creditor, Meyer honorably restored his trust, with interest. Never was honesty better policy. The elector if elector it were, blundered abroad the honesty of Meyer among the crowned heads and was the means of his obtaining the negotiation of the loans which the winding up of the Napoleonic wars required, and which laid the foundation of his enormous fortune. Now Meyer is as common a name in Germany as Smith is with us, and the rising banker took the name of his sign to distinguish himself from the 67 nonymous crowd of Meyers and was known as Meyer von Rothschild or Meyer of the Red Shield. The poor little emblem at the door of his old shop—very nicely limned, we dare say—little thought of the promotion to which it was to arrive.

PERSONAL ITEMS.

Professor Morse is dangerously ill, in New York.

Mosby, the guerrilla, is about to open a bank at Warrenton. As an opener of banks and other depositories of treasure he has had experience.

Garrett Covode, grandfather of John Covode, was kidnapped in Amsterdam when a child five years old, and brought to this country. When a man he was a domestic in the household of Geo. Washington, and died in 1826 aged 94.

North Bridgewater Massachusetts, hopes to have its name changed to Standish in honor of Miles Standish, who is posted by the Springfield Republican as a Revolutionary hero. There is no end to the historic lore stowed away in that Republican.

[DESPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

EASTERN DATES TO MARCH 7.

Germans to Occupy Versailles till the 19th Inst.

LONDON, March 7.—A special convention is entered into under which the German occupation of Versailles is extended till the 19th.

Prosecution of Members of the Provisional Government.

BORDEAUX, March 6.—In the Assembly, Louis Blanc, Victor Hugo and Quinett demanded the detention of members of the September government until they should return an account of their acts or until the capitulation of Paris. Delescluze demanded their impeachment and arrest on the charge of high treason.

News from Paris.

PARIS, March 6.—The Debats calculates that the expenses of the war will be six milliards of francs.

Favre and Simon have tendered their resignation. Thiers will not accept.

Gen. Paladine has arrived here and will command the National Guard.

Papers have published letters from Rochefort and Maton, resigning their seats in the Assembly because Thiers has made peace. They say France ought not to be dismembered.

Italian Affairs.

LONDON, March 7.—The Telegraph has a special dispatch from Florence announcing the settlement of the difficulty between Italy and Tunis. The demands of Italy are fully conceded and the conditions imposed by the Florence government accepted.

Dispatch from Rome.

ROME, March 7.—The Pope held a secret consistory and attacked the authors of the Italian unity, rejects Italian guarantees, laments the Franco Prussian war, and expresses gratitude for the devotion of the Catholic world.

Disaster at Sea.

LONDON, March 7.—The ship Mistress of the Seas was burned in the Indian ocean and seven teen persons drowned.

English Affairs.

LONDON, March 7.—In the House of Commons Gladstone, replying to a question of which D'Israeli gave notice last night, denied that the Government had any knowledge of a secret treaty between the Czar and Prussia. He also intimated that the Conference on the Euxine question would not adjourn for some time.

Goschens has accepted the office of First Lord of Admiralty.

LONDON, March 7.—The Times announces that Goschens succeeds Childers as First Lord of Admiralty. Stansfield succeeds Goschens as President of the Poor Law Board. Baxter succeeds Stansfield as one of the Secretaries of the Treasury. Leaves succeeds Baxter as Secretary of Admiralty.

The French Assembly.

BORDEAUX, March 6.—In the Assembly a motion was made that the Assembly should not return to Paris, but sit elsewhere. At the request of Thiers the Assembly went into committee on the question, and gives a decision to morrow.

Other Affairs in France.

PARIS, March 6.—The office of Prefect of Police will probably be abolished and the service united under the Minister of the Interior.

Two more regiments have arrived at Paris and reinforced the garrison.

The payment of thirty sous per day to the National Guards will be continued to obviate trouble.

BERNE, March 7.—The return of the French soldiers in Switzerland is postponed at request of the French Government, in consequence of interruption of the Lyons and Paris railroad.

FOREIGN NOTES.

There is fear in France that the whole of Algeria will soon be in a state of active revolution against the French authority, as the revolt is rapidly spreading.

The Prussians were very desirous to remove to Germany the three famous monster guns at Fort Valerien, called "Josephine," "Bethoven," and "Valerie" but they were too massive to transport, and they have been blown up in consequence.

The French Generals commanding the armies of France—Chanzy, Faidherbe, and others—have been urged by MM. Favre and Thiers, to appeal to the patriotism of the soldiers to preserve order, if necessary. An attempt will be made to keep up the organization of the armies for that purpose.

Von Moltke is reported to have likened, during a recent conversation, the battles of our civil war to the "mere scrambling of two armed mobs." We hope that neither Von Moltke nor any other Von will ever have occasion to have a different conclusion as to American soldiers forced upon him.

Among those killed on the French side at the battle before Orleans, was the young Duc de Luynes, the representative of a very ancient family. He had recently succeeded to the title by the death of his father, who, it is said, lived in the fashion of the old barons, with a great retinue of followers, at his country chateau.

It is noted as a somewhat curious coincidence that whereas the Tiber rose and overflowed Rome on the occasion of the late visit of King Victor Emanuel to that city, another inundation of the same stream occurred on the day of the more recent entry of Prince Humbert, the king's son, into Rome.

Count Bismarck has peremptorily refused the request of Switzerland, through the Swiss Minister at Paris, to be freed from the burden of maintaining the French prisoners now in that country, and has even threatened her with unpleasant consequences if a single French prisoner should escape.

England is living in the hope that Count Bismarck will amply redeem the promise he has made to compensate the owners of the vessels sunk in the Seine for the losses and injuries they have sustained. Here is a fine chance indeed for the display of magnanimity on the part of the Prussian "Boss."

An Irish gentleman and wife, residing in Paris during the siege, were reduced by hunger to kill their favorite dog "Pet" and serve him up at dinner. "Ah," said the gentleman, inspecting the animal's bones after the meal was over, "how poor Pet would enjoy these bones if he were alive!"

For want of more interesting topics, the Bordeaux correspondents are taking to writing profuse sketches of the physical appearance and habits of the Deputies. As thus: M. Guguette is bald and slim." M. Guguette "sits out and of saturnine expression." M. Rouher admires grisettes and falls asleep in his seat in the Assembly," and so on through the whole menagerie.

The Count de Paris the Prince de Joinville, and the Duc d'Aumale are said to be sojourning in Bordeaux. The Prince de Joinville has been in frequent consultation with M. Thiers and Gen. Changarnier. It is anticipated that M. Thiers will control the Constituent Assembly on its permanent organization, in the interest of the Count de Paris as king. M. Thiers is now practically the French Warwick.

Democratic papers are asserting that Surveyor General Odell is interested in the Eugene Military Road. They want to make it appear that he is putting up a job there. The Roseburg Express asserts, and we have reason to know, that Mr. Odell has no interest whatever in that road.

An eastern Oregon paper tells of a young man from that section who has started down to Portland to take an 'epidemic course of study.' We refer him to Dr. Lovejoy.

LAST NIGHT'S DISPATCHES.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

EASTERN STATES.

Foreign Cable Bill Vetoed.

NEW YORK, March 7.—The foreign cable bill suffered a veto at the hands of the President, for two reasons. First the bill threw open our shores without requiring any reciprocal guarantees from foreign governments. It also prescribed a tariff not exceeding five dollars gold for ten words, but left the companies at liberty to charge as much as they pleased for all over that amount. The manner in which the bill passed was somewhat peculiar. Over a month ago it was jammed through the House in a fit of rage, after angry discussion on a proposition to recall the resolution for the appointment of a joint committee on ocean cables which had passed a few days before. A few days since Sumner called the bill up in the Senate, and two amendments were added, one prohibiting consolidation, and the other making the tariff above noted. Friday afternoon it came up in the House and Gen. Banks quietly moved concurrence in the amendments, and they were agreed to without debate.

Another Steamship Line.

NEW YORK, March 7.—A contract has just been signed by Julius Vogel, Postmaster General of New Zealand, with Wm. H. Webb and Ben Holladay, of New York, for running a line of mail steamers every few weeks between San Francisco New Zealand, Sydney and Melbourne. The contract provides for large ships and of speed to enable the mails between Sydney and London to be delivered in 48 days. The pioneer ship is to sail from San Francisco on the 8th of April. The mail contract by Hall's line ends this month. Vogel starts for London by the Russia to-morrow.

CALIFORNIA.

San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 8.—John L. Decoto, steward of the ship Jas. R. Keeler, which arrived from New York last evening, while on the trip took a large dose of laudnum and then shot himself through the head.

Bourne, once a special police officer, better known as Billy the boatman, a pioneer Californian, and member of the old Monumental Legion Company, fell off the wharf and drowned, late last night.

The Lecture Medical Faculty of the University of California have resigned, owing to the failure of Dr. Toland to convey to the Board of Regents the title to Toland Medical College property, as first proposed by him, whereupon the Regents amended the records and adopted a resolution as follows:

Classical Learning

We yesterday printed an extract from a report given by the New York Herald of a lecture delivered in that city on Classical Education We reprint these two sentences 'There was no room in any man s head for two tongues, though there might be in a woman s The world s best work in literature was done by men who knew nothing of the classics ' There is nothing in this but flippancy The well worn and very poor pun on the first sentence will no longer pass for a witticism, and certainly it is not argument Is the assertion in the last sentence true? No person of real culture would venture to say so On the contrary it will be found that as a general rule the world s best work in modern literature has been done by classical scholars

We need not go beyond the English writers to verify this statement Nearly all who have been eminent in English literature have also been well versed in the literature of Greece and Rome True, there are some exceptions, but the general rule is as we have stated it There, indeed, was Shakspeare, who is said to have had little classical learning but Shakspeare was an unapproachable genius beyond all examples and all rules Still there are evidences in his works of a very considerable knowledge of the classics though that knowledge, perhaps, was not very accurate or critical But where will another very great name be found, which can be cited in support of the position taken by the New York lecturer? Look at the great writers There was Ben Jonson whose knowledge of the classics was thorough and profound There was Bacon, who was thoroughly versed in the literature of the ancients Milton was an universal scholar and his mind was completely saturated, so to speak, with the spirit and forms of ancient learning Dryden and Pope were both classical scholars the one has given us Virgil and the other Homer, in our own tongue Audison was noted for his accurate knowledge of ancient literature, especially of the Roman poets Johnson and Burke were classical scholars Walter Scott s classical learning was very considerable, and so was Thackeray s Macaulay was deeply learned both in Greek and Roman literature The same is true of the most eminent American writers. Bryant has just finished a translation of Homer

Even as subsidiary to the pursuit of modern languages and sciences—though it were not deemed important to explore the treasures of ancient learning for their own sake—a Greek and Roman classics are indispensable and he who ignores them, though he [illegible] modern literature and science all his [illegible] would be wanting in a certain fine interior [illegible] of his own and other modern [illegible] and of modern science in general, and [illegible] he true and accurate scholar must [illegible] and which such a scholar always de[illegible]

[illegible] apt to disparage classical learning [illegible] practically valueless for this [illegible] cannot obtain support from [illegible] as those delivered by the [illegible] Such assertions are [illegible] at both by persons who have not [illegible] ough [illegible] ereave the wonderful ef[illegible] and influen[illegible] f classical learning upon [illegible] bought and st[illegible] of our best writers

Germany and Europe

[illegible] all remembered, firmly declined [illegible] mediation of other powers in arranging [illegible] peace between herself and France [illegible] A correspondent of the London [illegible] writing from Berlin, gives a semi-official statement of the reasons of Germany's [illegible] against intending mediators The [illegible] somewhat in this wise Germany [illegible] victorious but she has suffered greatly [illegible] not afford to part with the prize of [illegible] dearly bought Nor was this [illegible] quarrel in which, right and wrong be [illegible] equally divided between the belligerents, [illegible] frequently the case, a third party has [illegible] step in and try to settle the matter [illegible] reasonable compromise Germany was [illegible] and for the mere sake of gratifying the [illegible] appetite of a conceited and greedy [illegible] So natural appeared to the French [illegible] supposed right to commit homicide on a neighbor s country that they did not even [illegible] to wait for a plausible pretext, but in [illegible] frivolous cause of war, such as the nineteenth century had not seen before Europe did nothing to prevent France from undertaking her unjustifiable campaign [illegible] she did not even declare against it in solemn form, which might have done something toward deterring the offenders Having convinced such complete indifference to the introductory phases of the war, no right belonged to her to step in and [illegible] even the guilty from punishment [illegible] the military strength displayed by [illegible] renders it indispensable for Germany [illegible] take this occasion to recover her ancient [illegible] frontier The territory to be taken [illegible] France was ancient German soil, and [illegible] ed from Germany at a time when internal divisions prevented resistance. These [illegible] re substantially the reasons why mediation was denied, and they certainly were very strong

A Magnificent Enterprise

The importance of the enterprise for the introduction of people into our State from Germany, of which our San Francisco dispatch of to-day gives an account, will challenge general attention For a year past Mr Holladay and others have had this enterprise in contemplation, and preparations have been making to inaugurate it Assurance is now given that these preparations are nearly completed The scheme is one of magnificent proportions It originated with Mr Holladay and if he can execute his intentions in the matter he will carry out one of the greatest and most creditable enterprises ever attempted in America The plan as outlined seems to be complete A line of steamers from Bremen direct to Aspinwall, and another from Panama to Portland, affording means of transportation the whole distance for the sum of seventy dollars and in a space of time not exceeding six weeks, forms a plan complete in all its parts, a plan which must operate most successfully for Oregon by bringing hither a multitude of the most industrious and thrifty people on the globe The cheapness of the fare is quite astonishing and it cannot be doubted that at those rates great numbers will come The close of the war between Germany and France will enable the scheme to go forward without impediment, and many who are tired of war and to whom the dynastic complications of Europe which continually threaten fresh commotions are a constant dread, will be glad to come to a country where the public peace is less frequently disturbed It is expected that there will be a great emigration from Germany to America this year and this enterprise which is now announced should enable Oregon to get a large share of it No undertaking has ever been broached of so great importance to our State as this will be if its details are carried out and the manner in which Mr Holladay usually does business and pushes ahead with what he undertakes should leave little doubt that this enterprise, magnificent as it is, will substantially succeed

Blair Brought to the Point

While Frank Blair was delivering his recent speech in the Senate, in which he declared that the reconstruction acts were null and void Mr Morton of Indiana asked leave to propose a question to the speaker Leave was granted by Mr Blair, when the following colloquy took place

Mr Morton I ask the Senator from Missouri this question whether the Democratic party did not make the issue to the country in the election of 1868 that the reconstruction acts were null and void and ought to be disregarded?

Mr Blair I think they did

Mr Morton And were they not beaten on that overwhelmingly?

Mr Blair I think the reason they were beaten was because some Democrats sought to dodge the issue and apologize for a doctrine as old as the Democratic party itself as if there was something wrong about it

Senator Morton s questions go precisely to the point Senator Blair's answer to the first question is candid and truthful his answer to the second one is very suggestive He tells exactly what is the matter with his party For many years the Democratic party has occupied a position which is odious to the people, and it has been constantly trying to dodge the issues and apologize for its doctrines, knowing well that the people have intuitively perceived there was something wrong about them Thus, in advocating its doctrines it has been on the defensive, and has been forced to apologize for them, to try to soften them down and to conceal their odious features This is a principal reason why it cannot win No party can win on such a basis Blair confesses that his party was beat on squarely in 1868 on reconstruction issues Does any same man suppose it can win on those issues in 1872—occupying the same position that it did in 1868?

A few days ago Congressman Rogers of Arkansas introduced in the House a resolution reciting that whereas "certain women" had taken possession of one of the Committee Rooms of the House, and had held possession thereof for the space of twelve days, and that whereas the Committee Rooms were intended for the use of members of Congress, 'Therefore resolved, that the Speaker be requested to take measures to remove from the Committee Room the women aforesaid The resolution had reference to the female suffrage lobbyists who were pressing their claims before Congress The reading of it produced general laughter The Speaker informed the mover of the resolution that he was not aware that he had any power in the premises, but whatever power he might possess he would willingly delegate to the gentleman from Arkansas Here the matter ended, and at last accounts the "certain women" referred to still held possession of the Committee Room

What excuse can be offered for the action taken by the Legislature at its recent session in giving away for the construction of locks at the Wallamet Falls the sum of $75,000 more than was necessary? A subsidy of $125 000 would have secured the same result for which $200 000 is to be paid Where is the excuse for this prodigal waste of $75,000? The only excuse that can be offered is that the subsidy mainly goes into the pockets of leading Democrats,—Col Kelly, John F Miller and others

A correspondent with the San Domingo Commission writes "There is not the remotest indication to be found in this section that President Grant has had anything to do with private transactions of any nature here Nobody supposed that any such indication could be found, yet the slanderous tongues of partisan opponents have been making allegations in the matter against the President s good name.

OREGON

The river is higher at Salem than at any time during the winter

The Salem subsidy of $10,000 for the agricultural work is made up—except $830

The Statesman contradicts the statement that Mr S L Simpson is to become its editor

S T Church of Salem has determined to remove to Santa Clara, (Cal) for the purpose of placing himself under the medical treatment of Dr Wythe

From the Statesman Ben Simpson, Esq is over from Yaquina Bay, and reports all matters in a healthy condition His mill is doing an extensive business, and, besides supplying the Bay towns with building material, has on hand about 600 000 feet of good lumber, ready to be shipped to San Francisco The first cargo will probably be sent by the schooner Iceland which was driven back to San Francisco in distress She is expected to repair and return soon and has on board the rigging for the new schooner building at Toledo, which will make its appearance on the waters, like a thing of life, next month

THE TERRITORIES

The house of Adam Fodge, on the road from Coppei to Lewiston, was destroyed by fire a few days ago Loss, $2 000

The M E church of Walla Walla have in contemplation the erection of a new church edifice, to be built of brick two stories high

Judge Wyche, a turn coat politician of Washington Territory, has been down in Mississippi He writes to the Walla Walla Statesman that he looked in on the Legislature at the State Capital, where there were some colored members 'The scene' says he 'was enough to turn a dog s stomach, and I turned away thinking the quietest exhibition of Radicalism ' It is really too bad that the Judge's 'stomach has turned!

A Protest from California

The San Francisco Alta has the following, in regard to the conduct of Columbia Bar Pilots

Several cases have come to light recently of the shameful treatment which masters of vessels for Portland (Oregon) receive at the hands of pilots at the Columbia Bar The recent Legislature of that State removed the penalties which had hung over the heads of these pilots and they now have a way of fixing things to suit themselves

It is reported that all kinds of indignities and extortions are practiced on masters of vessels by these Columbia bar pilots, and the mercantile interests of the coast are seriously interfered with Four or five of these pilots are granted a subsidy of $30 000 by the State of Oregon, for keeping their tug boat where it can be of service to vessels going to and coming from Portland and other towns on the Columbia river If the Board of Pilot Commissioners of that locality do not remedy this evil, it is hoped that a combination may be effected between shipowners that will press these fellows to the wall, as trade with that flourishing country cannot be thrown away, or even allowed to be jeopardized

Horace Hawes' deed of foundation giving near a million dollars' worth of property in San Mateo county and in this city for the establishment of Mountain Eagle University, has been placed on record The property lapses if within fifteen years after the death of the testator $100 000 is not raised from outside sources for the benefit of the institution Within thirty years $500 000 must be raised, within fifty years a million and a half, and within 100 years $3 000,000, making in all six and a half millions It is believed the conditions prescribed in the deed are of such a nature that the trust is utterly valueless and will lapse within the first fifteen years as no one will care to attempt to carry out its provisions

Pardon—Stolen Mining Stocks

VIRGINIA, March 8 —V W Cleveland, sent to the State Prison from Storey county, was pardoned yesterday by the Board of Prison Commissioners

Among the valuable papers and documents stole by the Gregor Grade stage robbers last Saturday morning were 18 certificates of Yellow Jacket stock, comprising 260 shares in all also one certificate of fifty shares of Jackson, and two of ten and twenty shares respectively of the Ida Elmore stock.

The Woe of France

The last number of the London Punch comes to us with one of those striking cartoons, which by strength of moral idea and admirable drawing have made that journal perhaps the greatest printed power in England A picture is a better argument often than whole columns of sentences

The cartoon referred to covers two pages and represents France as a woman kneeling in despair. Three blood hounds, with the name, Famine, Sword Fire are just drawing back upon mouthed, as if for a fresh onset In the back ground stand the Prussian lead ers, and underneath are the words, 'Call off the Dogs!' No one can look at this sad picture without feeling a strong stir of pity. The thought of France's folly must be forgotten in the conviction of her sorrow and suffering

There has come a pause in the fearful war, and the pause at last promises peace And what does peace mean, just now, for France An opportunity to find out how broken she is by hunger, fire and sword The lull in the storm gives us a chance to hear a wail from the poor—"We are houseless, homeless,—we have not even seed to plant for next harvest!' Letters have been sent to this country and read at public meetings and an intense sympathy is excited among all classes which is bringing forth fruit in organized collections of money and food And now there has come over the wires from New York a definite appeal to the religious and charitable heart of the whole land Telegraphed free of charge and signed by leading and representative names, we have the guarantee of good faith, and assurance that every dollar that is sent, will go to relieve distress

The words of the appeal are strong and touching 'Eight millions of people at least are suffering in winter for want of food and clothes The neighboring nations are making generous efforts to relieve their distress Will America allow distance to stifle the cry of famine in her ears' We know its extent and must hear her moan As Christians let us show ourselves prompt to recognize the claims of common humanity in a hunger bitten, naked, houseless and homeless people ' It is not sympathy with her cause, but with her distress that animates this appeal ' The churches of the land are called upon to take up a simultaneous collection on the second Sunday of March—'a common prayer for mercy on the famine stricken will go up to God, and a common feeling of sympathy and commemorative act of helpfulness will unite all churches and thrill heaven and earth '

May we not hope that the churches of Portland and of Oregon will heed this earnest cry for joint action irrespective of creed or party Will not the different pastors have faith enough in the people to invite them to give generously in the great behalf? Might there not also be some receiver in the community to take charge of any contribution from the citizens? We are too far off, perhaps to send materials and wheat seed—but money goes over wires, and can be in Paris two days after it is paid here! It is the glory of telegraph and railroad that they are the instruments by which nations can be drawn so near together in sympathy and help at a time like this

We know of several churches which mean to take up this contribution next Sunday—but let it not be isolated action Let every Church make a point of doing it The public are always ready to give when we are to ask

The Daily Oregonian.

THURSDAY MORNING, MARCH 9, 1871.

CITY.

DOWN-RIVER ITEMS.—We learn from a passenger who came up from Monticello yesterday, that on Monday a man named Joseph Hunter was instantly killed by a falling tree at Angell's Camp on the line of the Northern Pacific Railroad. The corpse was taken to Monticello on Tuesday and was buried yesterday. The deceased had been about Vancouver considerably, and it is said he owned some lots there.

The steamer Mary Bell was sold on Tuesday by Mr. Durgin, Deputy U. S. Marshal of Washington Territory, upon execution for debt. Capt. N. B. Smith bought her for $1,100. The Mary Bell was a year or so ago put on the Portland and Columbia river route as an opposition boat, but she failed to meet the requirements of the trade, returned her owner in debt, and was finally tied up under legal process.

The only other item from Monticello is a sort of commercial one. But informant says that interchanges are astonishingly costly, selling sometimes as high as twelve and a half cents for two pieces, or twenty-five cents for a half dozen. What is still more astonishing, he says that he knew several men who invested in matches more than once during his short sojourn there. The only rational theory upon which to account for such fancy prices is that the county of Cowlitz issues any licenses to sell a certain commercial commodity in quantities less than a pint.

METROPOLITAN POLICE UNIFORMS.—We read in a San Francisco paper that the Police Commissioners of that city have followed suit to some of our Metropolitan Police Commissioners and have resolved that the officers of the police force wear uniforms. The paper mentioned, says: "The Commissioners, who at a previous meeting had resolved that the officers must wear a uniform, examined a number of samples of dark blue cloth. After some discussion it was agreed that the uniform should be as follows: Dark blue pantaloons, dark blue vest single breasted, grey coats of a shade to be furnished by the Board, and black slouched hat. The first of April will be the time for the officers to don their new uniforms."

These San Francisco chaps are yet a long way behind our Metropolitan Police. Our officers are to have no "slouched hats," but oil-skin caps and plug hats on the "pattern of the metropolitan police of Eastern cities." Our officers are to have bright shining brass buttons, behind and before, and all that sort of thing. Go 'way, you Frisco humpties! Our fellows will be ashamed to shake hands with you, in your "cheap and nasty" back-woods rig.

A HANDSOME PRESENT.—Tuesday evening the Last Portland Brass Band was presented by Mr. C. H. Meredeffer with some handsome and showy uniform caps, fifteen in number. They are of the McClellan pattern, scarlet material and elegantly trimmed with gilt bands and white cord & tassel. The band, we hear, did some tall music on the occasion, and all hands, assisted by several ladies and gentlemen, had a merry, pleasant evening of it. The band will soon have a complete and handsome blue uniform, the suits being now in progress.

ACCIDENT AND FALL.—Mr. Wejdler, purser of the George S. Wright, met with an unfortunate accident yesterday morning. He was in the act of stepping ashore from the steamer, when the gangway on which he was holding for support, gave way, and he fell into the river, between the ship and the dock, receiving some sprains and bruises and a decided wetting.

LECTURE.—Rev. Dr Atkinson has accepted an invitation to deliver a lecture at Good Templars' Hall, in Carter's building, next Friday evening at half past seven o'clock, for the good of the order. The hall will be open to the general public, and everybody is cordially invited to attend.

EAST PORTLAND NEWSPAPER.—We learn that on or about the 1st of April, the Democratic Era will make its appearance at East Portland. Rumor names for the name of U. E. Hicks with it as proprietor and editor. The paper is to be a weekly and a ... Democratic in politics.

HIGH WATER.—The Willamette is now a little higher than at any former time this winter, and is still rising. A considerable part of the low land in front of East Portland is now overflowed, and the ... premises to be noticeably in the way of the work of filling Second street.

PRIVATE SCHOOL.—By request of several ladies Mrs. E. Jones brought will open a private school on Monday, March 13th, on the southeast corner of ... and Mill streets. We bespeak for her a liberal share of patronage.

AN OLD VETERAN.—Mr. A. J. Dufur, Secretary of the State Agricultural Society, with H. ... Stitzel and Magone, will to-day make a special effort in this city to extend the circulation of the Willamette Farmer.

THE OFFICE FOR PORTLAND.—We learn that Messrs. Coburn and McCabe, old "pilots" of this city, will go below on the Idaho, to put the press and material for an extra job office for this city.

OUT ON BAIL.—Barrett and Knox, two of the men who went through George White a few nights since, have given bail for their appearance at the next term of the Circuit court, and are again at large.

TO THE PENITENTIARY.—Sheriff Dills went to Salem yesterday, having in charge Robert Wilson, sentenced to three years in the penitentiary for perjury.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE PIXLEYS.—The Pixley Sisters reached home from Walla Walla Tuesday evening. We understand they have an engagement to appear at Oro Fino in a short time.

THE VIEUXTEMPS CONCERT.—The preparations for the first concert of the Vieuxtemps Musical Conservatie are going on space. The decorations of the room have been about completed, and the workmen are working indefatigably to get everything else in readiness. It promises to be a successful affair.

ONE FINE THEATER.—The racy comedies of "The Jealous Wife" and "The Eton Boy," were played last evening to a very appreciative audience. Mrs. Bates personated the dual character of Fanny and Tom in the latter play, with great vivacity and excellent effect. Mr. Bates was amusing in the character of Capt. Popham, but when he came out as Fanny, the house fairly exploded with laughter. Mr. Vinson made a very pompous Dobster. The "Eton Boy" will be repeated to-night; and there will be an interlude with performances by Mr. Cook, and an excellent comedy to conclude with.

THE BALL.—The annual ball of the Society Ahabia Shalomo, was not so large as to numbers as our Society balls frequently are, but it was a thoroughly enjoyable affair.

NECK TIE SOCIABLE.—The neck-tie sociable at the Lutheran Church was one of the most sociable entertainments of the season, and the amount of fun consequent upon the universal search for partners was immense.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

REGULAR MEETING, MARCH 8, 1871.

Present—His Honor the Mayor presiding, and Councilmen Besser, Bills, Breck, Cree, Congle, Drake and Hill.

PETITIONS.

From R. A. White, asking a reduction of his assessment for city taxes $43,000 for indebtedness. Ordered placed on file.

From D. W. Burnside, for permission to use streets for the purpose of moving Miss Batchelder's school house to corner Fifth and Pine. Granted.

From Savier and Co., asking for use of streets for building purposes and to move building. Granted.

Permits were granted to L. Bowie, J. Mooney, L. Beatty, D. Halpruner, M. McGavitt and F. Landers, to improve certain streets under ordinance 793.

A communication was received from E. Van Fridagh and others concerning the proposed improvement and opening of Washington street to its intersection with B street, favorable to such improvement and extension. Referred to the Committee on Streets and Public Property.

REMONSTRANCES.

From W. K. Smith and others, against the proposed grades of Water street. Referred to the Committee on Streets and Public Property.

From L. A. Goddard and others, against the proposed widening of Second street. Referred to the Committee on Streets and Public Property.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES.

From the Committee on Streets and Public Property, upon the claim of Phil. Saunders—$12 for blanks delivered to his successor—recommending payment of $7 00. The report was adopted.

From the same committee, to whom was referred the petition of Pfunder for lease of Park blocks—committee expressed the opinion that the city cannot lease the Park blocks, but they recommend that Mr. Pfunder be allowed to use such blocks as are south of Mill street. Report adopted.

From the same committee to whom had been referred the remonstrance against the improvement of Columbia street—the committee reported that the street is in bad condition; that in consequence the city may be liable at any time for damages; but that as now, all former efforts to improve the street have been defeated by the property holders. Report placed on file.

From the same committee to whom had been referred the remonstrance against the extension of Second street—committee reports that the signers of the remonstrance represent a majority of the property holders to be affected, and they recommend that the proposed extension be not proceeded with. Report adopted.

From the same committee a resolution directing the City Surveyor to report grades on Yamhill street, pursuant to a petition of property holders. Adopted.

From the same committee to whom had been referred a message of the Mayor in relation to charges of the City Surveyor for services of Assistants—the committee report that they find the law provides for payment of assistants to the surveyor at the rate of $3 per day, a sum which in their opinion is low enough; that the Surveyor, owing to the fact that he has found some employment in the county, has found it convenient to hire assistants by the month; that when employed in city surveying he has charged on the average and in the aggregate, less than allowable under the ordinance; that this has been a saving to the city; that if the charges had been made as per the lawful rates for all work done, the aggregate would have been larger by $173 63 than the charges actually made. The committee, however, express the opinion that the plan of paying surveyors by the day is not the best method, and that the office of Surveyor ought to be a salaried one, with a salary sufficient to cover all compensation necessary for assistants. The report was laid on the table.

REPORTS OF OFFICERS.

From the Chief Engineer, stating that the water closet of No. 3's engine house needs cleaning—referred to the Committee on Fire and Water.

From the Surveyor—a plat of the survey of the extension of Salmon street—referred to the Committee on Streets and Public Property.

CLAIMS AGAINST THE CITY.

Following claims were ordered paid: M. Milwain, pipe, gas fitting, etc., $27 95; H. W. Corbett, heating Council chamber and city offices for February, $15; H. L. Pittock, advertising, $25 88; Wasserman & Co., inkstands and portfolios $96; J. H. Buller, for cleaning Council Chamber, etc., $47 50. The bill of Oscar Kilbourn for making assessment roll, $800, was referred to the Committee on Accounts and Current Expenses.

ORDINANCES.

An ordinance adopting the report of the City Surveyor in the matter of the extension of Salmon street—read twice and laid over.

An ordinance to provide for the construction of a sewer at the intersection of Lincoln and First streets—read three times and passed.

An ordinance to provide for sprinkling the streets—referred to the Committee on Streets and Public Property.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolutions were adopted as follows:

Providing for the proposed improvement of Ninth street from Stark to G.

Directing the Surveyor to estimate and report the cost of the proposed improvement of Washington street from Twelfth to B.

Giving notice that no claim will be audited unless presented to the Auditor at least twenty-four hours prior to any regular meeting of the Council.

Directing Committee on Streets and Public property to report, if practicable, a plan for granting "permits" to improve streets under ordinance 793, without the direct intervention of the Council.

Directing the Surveyor to estimate the amount of cutting and filling for the proposed improvement of First street, south of Lincoln.

The Council adjourned.

THE COURTS.

WEDNESDAY, March 8, 1871.

COUNTY COURT—HAMILTON, JUDGE.—Present, Messrs. Burton and Kenworthy, sitting with the Judge.

The evidence in part concerning the Silverton and East Portland Plank Road was heard, and the case continued until to-morrow.

REAL ESTATE JOURNAL.—We inadvertently omitted two days since to notice the issue of the March number of Stitzel & Upton's Real Estate Journal. The leading feature of this paper is an article on Portland as a place to invest money in real estate. The article is quite thorough in its treatment of the subject, and the advantages offered by Portland for the investment of money are clearly pointed out.

SAILED.—The barkentine Falkinburg sailed yesterday morning for Honolulu.

MR. ROBERTS ON SCIENCE AND REVELATION.

MR. EDITOR:—I was pleased to see in yesterday's DAILY OREGONIAN, under the head of "Lectures on Geology," that on the 14th and 22d of this month, the Rev. Mr. Condon will lecture in this city, on "The Geology of the Great Basin of the Interior of Oregon." Although I do not adopt all of Mr. Condon's opinions respecting the teachings of geology, yet, knowing him as I do, to be a truthful, sincere, and candid man, and above all, a Christian gentleman, I am compelled to respect him even in those opinions in which I may differ with him. I confess that I do not know half as much upon this subject as I would like to know, and as, perhaps, it is my duty to know. And yet I am not prepared to believe that the science of geology teaches anything respecting the cosmogeny of the world that in any degree conflicts with the Mosaic account, as we have it in the book of Genesis, as I have been accustomed to understand it, believing, as I always have in the creative power of God,

Whose word leaped forth at once to its effect;
Who called for things that were not, and they came.

I have always been accustomed to regard God as accomplishing His ends by the simplest and most direct means—

In human works, though labored on with pain,
A thousand movements scarce one purpose gain;
In God's, one single, can its end produce,
Yet serves to second, too, some other use.

It was therefore very natural for me to feel some degree of satisfaction when, after Mr. Condon's last lecture in this city, it was announced that the Rev. William Roberts of the Taylor street Church, would, on two successive Sabbath evenings, lecture on the "Agreement of Nature, Science and Revelation." I understand, as I think others did, that the object proposed was to obviate some objections which Mr. Condon's lecture suggested, respecting the supposed teachings of geology as differing from that of the Bible. I attended the first lecture with the feeling of one who enjoys in advance the anticipated easy victory to be won by the favorite champion of a common cause. Settling myself upon a comfortable cushioned seat, I awaited with eager expectation the pointing out of several particulars in which geology is affirmed to teach one thing, while the Bible is thought to teach quite another; and I did not doubt (so unsophisticated was I,) that Mr. Roberts would show himself to be familiar with the subject he had taken in hand, and that he would, upon scientific principles and the laws of Biblical exegesis and interpretation, harmonize those supposed differences, and show to the satisfaction of every hearer of intelligence that these differences were apparent only, and not real. But he did nothing of the sort. I did not understand him as proceeding beyond the merest allusion to the subject. After which he said some things on the subject of geology, but nothing save what is taught in the ordinary school books. I confess that I began to suspect that I had overrated my champion, and that his science was mere sham and pretence. However, I finally made up my mind that the talk of the speaker had not been intended to be received as a lecture, but to serve the purpose of attracting an audience for last Sabbath night. The night came. The audience and Mr. Roberts came. But the subject did not come, nor did he ever even allude to any either real or supposed difference between the teachings of Revelation and that of geology, or of any other science.

In short, the result of the whole of the two discourses (for lectures they were not), was to leave upon my mind a feeling of disappointment and mortification, in view of the obvious fact that the speaker, in venturing out upon this subject, had got quite beyond his depth, possessing no adequate scientific attainments to sustain him, and that he had not even the advantage of inflated bladders to keep him from going under and out of sight. ACHILLES DEHARLEY.

Poisonous Medicines.
The theory that the virus of disease can be safely counteracted by doses of poison, is false and dangerous. Within the last twenty-five years, not less than a score of virulent poisons have been added to the repository of the medical profession. They are given in small doses, otherwise they would destroy life immediately; but even in minute quantities, they produce, ultimately, very disastrous effects. It is unwise and unphilosophical to employ, as remedies, powerful and insidious drugs, which, in subjugating one disease, sow the seeds of another still more unmanageable. None of these terrible medicaments operates with as much directness and certainly upon the causes of disease as Holetter's Stomach Bitters, a tonic and corrective, without a single deleterious ingredient in its compound. Arsenic and quinia are given for intermittents; bromide potassium for nervous disorders; strychnine and prussic acid for general debility; mercury in various forms, for liver-complaint; preparations of chloroform and opium for sleeplessness; and yet these deadly drugs do not compare, as specifics for the diseases above enumerated, with that wholesome vegetable invigorant and alterative, while they are all so pernicious that it is astonishing any physician should take the responsibility of prescribing them. Let invalids, for their own sakes, try the Bitters before they resort to the poisons. The relief they will experience from a course of the harmless specific, will render a recourse to the unsafe preparations referred to, quite unnecessary.

The Battle of Belfort.

DETAILS OF THE ENGAGEMENT—STRENGTH OF THE FRENCH AND GERMAN FORCES—THE FRENCH LARGELY IN EXCESS OF THEIR OPPONENTS—VON WERDER'S VICTORY—REASONS FOR THE FRENCH DISASTER—BOURBAKI'S RETREAT

[Correspondence of the London Times from Von Werder's Army.]

On the 9th of January General von Werder quitted Vesoul to take up a strong position before Belfort at Bievillers, attacking the enemy at Villersexel en route, inflicting very heavy loss and taking more than a thousand prisoners. There were skirmishes of considerable importance with the outposts every day, in which the enemy was always worsted. On the morning of the 15th, Sunday—those battles are always fought on the Sunday—General Bourbaki, confident in his great preponderance in numbers, in his numerous artillery and mitrailleuses, attacked the well-chosen position of General von Werder. The centre of the German line was at Henricourt; the right wing at Prahlier, under General Graf von Degenfeld, the left at Montbehard, under General von Glumer, the south line extending from Montbehard to Dolle, under General von Debschutz. The French army consisted of four army corps, originally each of 30 000 men. This army was something over 100 000 strong. General Cremer commanded one army corps; it is believed the Twenty fourth, the other army corps were the Twenty fifth, the Eighteenth and the Fifteenth, the last three a part of the divided Loire Army. The Twenty-fourth and Twenty fifth were two new army corps formed in Lyons, the base of the French operations. One of these corps did not arrive till Monday evening, the second day of the battle, which brought the forces up to about 125,000 or 130,000 men. The whole German army under General von Werder was certainly under 40,000 men. Of those something over 4 000 consisted of cavalry. The artillery of the French was superior in number to that of the Germans, and they had sides, at least, three batteries, each consisting of six, of mitrailleuses. The attack commenced on the Sunday morning at eight o'clock with artillery, which kept up a continual fire until dusk. The small arms, which did not come into play until a couple of hours later, never ceased the whole day, and at four o'clock the roar of all arms was a fearful thing to hear. The Germans never recorded one single step from the position they had taken, and when night put an end to the fight they bivouacked along the whole line on the same spot whereon they were attacked in the morning. The next morning (Monday) General Bourbaki, having received the reinforcement of another army corps, renewed his attack, directing it principally against the right wing, throwing immense masses of troops against it, endeavoring to break the German line. On the day, along the whole line, these infantry German troops remained unshaken in position. The loss inflicted by their well directed fire was immense on the attacking French, and the loss of the Germans greater than on the first day, when about 200 to 300. The second day nearly 1 000, principally at Chamoney. The loss of the French, which is killed, wounded and missing, not less than 10,000 men. On the day the German army began ground they had taken up during. The third day, Tuesday, there was much fainter, and in the morning commenced a retreat of their forces pursued by the artillery fire. On the fourth day, Wednesday, Schurz attacked the retreating [illegible] great loss and pursuing [illegible] as far as Montbeliard. From here he was [illegible] the siege of Belfort. On the day the French continued [illegible] Besancon. General von [illegible] day after the French to [illegible] march only—thence to [illegible] on Werder arrived at [illegible] January 23 about ten miles [illegible] Versailles has been occupied [illegible] and made safe by both armies. Many houses are a heap of ruins, many more [illegible] damaged. The houses of the defeat of [illegible] immense army of some 130 000 men, with [illegible] artillery and battalions of the murder [illegible] mitrailleuse are so far to seek. The [illegible] of [illegible] have been distributed to the [illegible] hands. Many of the prisoners [illegible] the road have nothing for two days [illegible] and in this where I had quarters in North [illegible] proprietor, told me that when the French army passed through the [illegible] eagerly the dung heaps, and the [illegible] upon the potatoes prepared to feed the pigs. The road from Villersexel to Montbeliard and thence to this place, had numerous dead horses on the road side, from some of which the flesh on the back had been taken. But for food. Numbers of these unfortunate animals were little better than mere skeletons, with sharp protruding bones. The whole was a knapsacks broken chassepots, cartouche pouches, caps, cooking utensils broken swords and indescribable refuse. Over at least about Communication is now [illegible] the army under General von [illegible] Besancon. The mitrailleuses [illegible] upon. One volley killed and [illegible] twenty-one men. An attack was [illegible] Bussurel by 600 French on a battalion of landwehr. These were allowed to [illegible] than 150 paces, when the Germans [illegible] and killed or wounded the whole 600, with the exception of forty-two, who became were made prisoners. One gendarme of the staff corps was struck by a chassepot at 2,000 yards distance, the bullet [illegible] the Order of the Iron Cross which he [illegible] and went round into his shirt with wounding him—a narrow escape, indeed. The whole number of prisoners taken is from 10 000 to 12 000.

A Wonderful Natural Pharmacy.

THE HOME OF QUININE

People addicted to the luxury of fever and [illegible] western districts devoted to "meanness" or "chills sorrees," will be [illegible] hear that, according to an article [illegible] of Bogota (translated [illegible] and Herald), there is in [illegible] of Colombia a region, little [illegible] called San Martin. Among its vegetable productions are to be found the Peruvian bark tree [illegible] essential salt of which, known as [illegible] has become even more indispensable [illegible] the old world than the new. The [illegible] this territory are on the east [illegible] the Orinoco comprehended between [illegible] on the north by the Meta to the north and that of [illegible] on the south, on the north by the Meta from its confluence into the Orinoco [illegible] mouth of the river Upia, and thence up [illegible] as far as the limits of the district of Casanare. On the west, by the ridge of the Eastern Cordilleras to the head waters of the Rio Blanco, then down current to the mouth of the Quebrado de Susumaco, then up towards its head waters in the Paramo of Chingaza. This territory has then on its east side Venezuela, on the north the territory of Casanare, on the south the immense plains of Caqueta, and on the west the state of Cundinamarca. The waters of the Orinoco bathe its eastern limits for about fifty leagues. The Meta runs through this territory for the space of 150 leagues.

The wooded highlands of the territory are situated in the rich zone of the Quinas. The trees which produce this valuable bark abounds on all the eastern declivities of the Cordilleras, from the head waters of the Guaman to those of the Upia. This zone has in territory an extension of forty leagues long by five or six wide. At its southern and northern extremities collections of Quina bark are made in large quantities. Towards the south a company called the Colombian Bark Company and several individuals have been extracting and exporting the bark for some years past. The high prices it brings in the markets of the United States and Europe are proofs sufficient of its good quality. The part of the Cordilleras comprehended between the Ariari and Rio Negro has not yet been touched, although in San Martin and Villavicencio it has the name of being richer in Quinas than any other part, besides consisting entirely of unclaimed lands. On the banks of the Ariari the trees yielding cancho abound, as well as sarsaparilla and pecacuanha on the Vichada. The balsam of copaiba is collected by the Indians of Vichada in large quantities and embarked on the Meta for Ciudad Bolivar.

A great many balsams and resins are mentioned, with an innumerable variety of woods, palms and textile plants. This is easily conceivable. In fact, the Orinoco has attracted much less attention than the Amazon. Since the voyage of Humboldt when he visited the cave of Ataruipe, which is the sepulchre of an extinct nation, our knowledge of the natural products of this region has not been much extended. The demand for quinine seems to increase in the direct ratio of the population of civilized countries. Malaria and malarious fevers of more or less intensity we find as well out of the tropics as in them, but the same cannot be said of the only known substance which can be depended upon to neutralize its mysterious effects upon the human system. Such an extent of Quina forests as the territory of San Martin is said to possess is worth many gold mines, and the country that owns them may well be considered as privileged by Providence.
